Friendly Reminder

Captain Don wants you to be aware of the potential hazards around docking stations. Keep an eye out for any warning signs that may indicate a shock hazard.

Remember, water conducts electricity, and exposed wires can be a major safety concern if you aren't careful.

Rivertowne thanks you for doing your best to stay safe out on the water!

Boating Tip of the Month

Follow proper docking procedures

Depending on the wind, the current and your type of boat, docking can be a challenge. As you approach the dock or shore, make sure your bumpers are out to prevent damage to your craft, reduce your speed and make sure the docking lines are secured. If the wind is blowing towards the shore, bring the boat about two feet from the dock and the wind will gently pull it in. You can then secure it with lines. If the wind is blowing away from the shore, approach the dock at a 20- to 30-degree angle to compensate for the wind. Then secure the bow line.
